Hi Andrew

Thank you for your supportive response. I have passed your details on to an appropriate contact at the MPS (As it will be the MPS and CoLP that this will need to be taken forward with) and asked them to contact you.

Due to the sensitivity around circulating a named police officer contact details when they are involved with counter-terrorism, I've not been able to copy them into this email but if you don't hear from the MPS in the next week, please let me know and I will follow up. In the meantime, any contact made to ProjectGriffin@cityoflondon.police.uk or projectargus@cityoflondon.police.uk (if you have already done so) will be taken forward.

Thanks again
Silka

Hi Silka,

Thanks for your email. We'll take a look at all of these and see where we can contribute.

Our app also allows us to communicate with millions of Londoners very quickly should the worst happen. We'd be happy to work with the right person at TfL or City Hall to discuss how we might help most effectively in these types of circumstances. Do you know who the most appropriate person to pick up the discussion would be?

Thanks very much.
Andrew

As you all know, our licensees are vital eyes and ears for the police and security services in London. If you've had a chance to look at today's weekly email (attached) already, you will have seen that we have included a message about how to spot possible terrorist activity and how to report anything suspicious. We will be sharing that message through the email about once a month, to ensure it stays fresh in drivers' minds.

Following the recommendations of Lord Harris’s review of London’s Preparedness to Respond to a Major Terrorist Incident, we have been asked to alert the trade to the practical advice, training and support that is available to organisations and businesses that operate in London, which you (if you haven’t already done so) may be interested in looking into:

- Cross-sector Safety & Security Communications (CSSC) is a partnership between law enforcement agencies, local and national government and private sector businesses. The CSSC aims to help businesses remain safe and secure by providing information on how to develop robust resilience and emergency preparedness plans. Further information can be found on the CSSC website and you can register your organisation here.
- Project Argus is a training initiative developed by the National Counter Terrorism Security Office and delivered by Counter Terrorism Security Advisers throughout the UK. Training is provided free of charge and delivered either at a City of London police station or at a venue hosted by your organisation. The training aims to raise awareness of the threat from terrorism and provide practical advice on preventing, handling and recovering from an attack. Please find a list of available dates on the Project Argus website or contact projectargus@cityoflondon.police.uk.
- Project Griffin provides national counter terrorism awareness training and resources for business, aiming to increase public and staff awareness and educate on how best to prepare and respond to the most likely types of terrorist activities. Training is also free of charge and is either delivered at a City of London Police premises, or through a self-delivery course made available to Public Limited Companies and Private Limited Companies. To find out more, and to see the next available training dates, please visit the Project Griffin website or email ProjectGriffin@cityoflondon.police.uk.

If you aren’t already doing so, it would be great if you would consider participating in these initiatives and if you could communicate with the drivers you work with to let them know how to report any suspicious activity.

Best wishes

Silka

Both

If you are not already aware, I would appreciate it if you could use your communication channels to let drivers know that the A11 (eastbound) is currently fully closed due to emergency works Thames Water are undertaking to a manhole cover.

The closure will be in place throughout the evening peak.

Our Roads and Transport Enforcement Officers and Roads Policing Team are assisting with diverting traffic and Thames Water has put in place a signed diversion.

Our roadside VMS system has been updated to make the closure clear, and we are tweeting from @TfLtrafficnews. I would be grateful if you could advise people, through your communications channels, to keep an ear out for traffic radio, and, (clearly when not driving and safely parked!) on the @TfLtrafficnews feed for updates.

Thank you
