Hi [REDACTED],

The age limit of 15 years is extended to 20 years if you convert from diesel to LPG.

Thank you Alex for your speedy reply, I understand the reasons in regard to the vehicles looking old and tired, in fact I said exactly that to the drivers. So the LPG are extended from 10 years to 15 years, not 15 to 20 years

Thank you once again Alex

Hello [REDACTED],

Taxis converting to LPG from diesel are eligible for a 5 year extension to the current age limit of 15 years. This is to reflect the significant cost to the owner of installing cleaner technology and to give them time to recoup that financial outlay.

The age limit of 15 years also reflects the duty cycle of a London taxi and the need to ensure that passengers and drivers enjoy the latest developing safety technologies and amenities brought in by the regular replacement of older taxis with new taxi models.

There are no plans at the moment to increase the age limit of taxis to 20 years.

Regards,

Alex

Good morning Alex, I hope that you are well. I have just had a question asked of me by 2 London Taxi Drivers, I thought I ask you and I hope that you don't mind.

The current Taxis have a 15 year life before they have to be taken off the road; I gather if the drivers go down the LPG conversion route, this can be extended to 20 years. The question asked of me was, would the 20 year extension apply to the new generation Hybrid and Electric vehicles also, subject to them passing their test every 6 months?

Thank you Alex

I look forward to hearing from you

Kind regards
