Hi Billy

This is what I sent back to Andrew yesterday. Perhaps we can discuss it at our meeting.

Hi Andrew

Initial draft attached.

I've not had a response back from Billy yet. Liz advised:

“In short, no we have not done an air quality model to look at no tolls with both crossings. We ran a small range of charges ahead of choosing the ‘reference case’ charge for the DCO application. Some were lower, some higher however I don’t think we actually fully completed the air quality model on these variations as the consultants identified as early as possible whether the results would pass the test. Given the air quality model takes approx. 6 weeks to complete we would always abandon the run if it was becoming obvious the charge would not produce acceptable air quality results.”

Please let me know if further research or expansion of any of the areas is required.

Regards

John
