Discretionary disabled Freedom Pass

Concessionary bus passes issued by English local authorities outside London

The English National Concessionary Travel Scheme (ENCTS) is a national scheme operated by the Department for Transport, in conjunction with English local authorities, which provides free bus travel within individual local authorities and allows travel throughout England, by English residents who have attained the state pension age for women. Certain local authorities offer extra benefits for use within their area. Comparable schemes operate within Wales and Scotland.

ENCTS bus passes issued outside London are valid within Greater London on all bus services operated on behalf of TfL. ENCTS bus pass holders can travel free at all times on TfL bus services, which display this symbol:

English National bus passes issued by English local authorities outside London are not valid for free travel on trams, the Tube, DLR, London Overground, TfL Rail and National Rail.

English National bus passes include:

- A red rose symbol in the top left hand corner
- A red ribbon across the card
- A hologram

All local authorities in England issue passes to this same design - the only variation is in the top right-hand area which shows the issuing authority.
