Hi all,

Thank you to those who have already responded to our next inclusive infrastructure workshop. If you still wish to attend please respond to the invite by 12pm tomorrow as we will be allocating you into subgroups.

I have attached the information pack that was sent out previously. We will be having a briefing from [REDACTED] at Transport for All on their new Pave the Way report. You may wish to have a look at Transport for All's Pave the Way campaign which can be viewed here.

This session will be recorded and specific feedback or discussion points will be shared internally with respective teams. The recordings will not be shown outside TfL. If you are not comfortable with being recorded then please let me know so that we can identify a way forward which will work for you (e.g. you are OK for me and members of my team to look at the recording, but not anyone else at TfL).

We know that many of you will be aware of last week's ruling in the Bishopsgate Judicial Review. While we won't be able to discuss the scheme or ruling in the workshop on Thursday, our commitment to delivering inclusive walking and cycling infrastructure in London remains a key priority for us, as does our commitment to working together with you to identify solutions and achieve best practice, both later this week and in the future.

See you all on Thursday and if you have a questions before then please feel free to get in touch.

Best wishes,

Amy Edgar
